The Property Ombudsman

About the property

A substantial detached family home in a sought-after Newport location, occupying an established position and offering generous and versatile accommodation, making it an appealing prospect for families seeking additional space.

With five bedrooms, two en-suites and a family bathroom, and two reception rooms. The layout offers excellent flexibility for modern family living, with the additional space lending itself well to home working or a range of lifestyle requirements.

The house benefits from its detached position, providing a good degree of privacy and separation from neighbouring properties. Providing convenient access to the town's wide range of amenities, including shops, schools, cafés, restaurants and everyday services.

Newport itself occupies a central position on the Isle of Wight, making it particularly convenient for accessing other parts of the island, while the surrounding area offers a mixture of countryside, residential neighbourhoods and recreational opportunities.
